BONUSEERS ADD SIX NEW TENTS; EXPECT PINCHOT

Camp Leaders Prepare For Visit From Governor Thursday.

VETS OUTLINE COMING EVENTS

Governor Gifford Pinchot may visit the Gettysburg bonus army camp on Thursday, leaders of the camp said today.

The leaders said Melvin H. James, Governor Pinchot's personnel director, who spent several hours at the camp on Monday, told them the state's chief executive might visit the camp on Thursday.

No time for Mr. Pinchot's arrival was learned by the leaders, but efforts were being made today to have the place in ship-shape for the governor if he comes.

Six Tents Purchased

Lending weight to leaders' assertions that the Gettysburg bonus army camp would be maintained until Congress reconvenes in December, six tents were purchased in Philadelphia, Tuesday, and toward these were erected on the camp grounds at the national cemetery.

Besides the six four-man tents bought in Philadelphia, leaders were negotiating for an airplane hangar tent, which, they said, would be large enough to house 50 to 75 men.

While they were in Philadelphia, Tuesday, leaders of the local camp opened a room at which clothing and food for the campers may be left. Leaders said they had the assurance of several Philadelphia Veterans of Foreign Wars' posts that they would help supply food and clothing for the men here.

Sporting Events Listed

Leaders today were discussing a suitable name for the camp. Several of them suggested the name "Camp Wible" in honor of Sheriff John C. Wible. Leaders said they have been having their long distance telephone calls directed to the sheriff's office, and that Mr. Wible has frequently visited the place.

The camp's baseball team spent the greater part of the morning practicing for a game with the Gettysburg fire company team on the Gettysburg academy grounds Thursday evening.

On Friday evening, several boxing bouts will be staged at the camp; on Saturday evening a dance will be held and on Sunday, evening at 5 o'clock the Kitties band of the York American Legion post will give a concert here.

The camp's food supply is still being maintained and no grumbling about the meals has been heard from the men, leaders said.

The number of campers hovers around 225.

"Guinea" Wisler Appropriates Colonel's Boots In Time Of Need

Young Officer In Training At Fort Meade Forced To "Borrow" Regiment Leader's Boots; Eleven Officers From Gettysburg In Camp.

"WHEN in camp do as the colonels do," seems to be the slogan adopted by one of Gettysburg's contingent at Fort G. Meade for two weeks' instruction in the school of arms.

Apparently in the rush of preparations for departure to camp last week, Second Lieutenant Raymond Wisler, of Gettysburg, forgot to pack his boots along with his other necessary equipment.

All went well until Sunday when a second lieutenant without "his boots" faced the possibility of committing a very grave social error in military circles.

However, Lieutenant Wisler, better known as "Guinea" among his Gettysburg friends, solved the situation in the most peculiar way. He borrowed the "colonel's" boots.

Such resourcefulness on the part of a young reserve officer is to be admired at any cost. But our informant failed to tell us of a penalty, if any, that was inflicted upon "Guinea." In any event, the colonel's boots' saved the day for "a budding young officer."

The contingent of Gettysburgians stationed at Fort Meade with the 316th Infantry regiment, along with several other regiments, forms the 79th division encamped for instruction in the school of arms.

The local officers are as follows: Captain W. G. Weaver, Captain Robert Geseiman, 1st Lieutenants Harold Thomas and Grayson Peters, 2nd Lieutenants Jacob C. Britcher, Jacob M. Sheads, Raymond Wisler, Jacob R. Hershey, Kenneth Bream, Kermit Dear-dorff and George Hull.

ADAMS ANGLERS MAY EXPECT BIG CATCHES IN '33

Local Fishermen Have County Streams Stocked With Bass And Trout.

SEINES UNLAWFUL

WITHIN a year or two, Adams county may become a fishermen's paradise.

Through the efforts of D. J. Forney, Gettysburg garageman, and other Isaak Waltonians, the state bureau of fisheries and hatcheries is stocking various streams in the county with good-sized trout and bass.

Streams To Be Patrolled

Approximately 3,000 trout, ranging in size from six to eleven inches, were placed in Marsh creek, Conewago creek and Tom's creek, and today a consignment of bass were received from Marsh and Conewago creeks.

Until the fish become larger, game protectors will patrol the streams in which the trout and bass have been placed to prevent seining. Mr. Forney also urged residents along the streams to report any violations of the fish laws until the young fish have been acclimated to their new surroundings.

Trout Are Unsavory

Mr. Forney recalled that several years ago when a number of fish were placed in a certain Adams county stream he received reports that seines were placed in the stream one night—and several large cans of young fish were taken from the stream. To guard against a repetition of this occurrence, state fish wardens and local residents will patrol the streams until the first are larger.

Mr. Forney also pointed out that the young trout and bass placed in the streams are not fit to eat. "They have been raised on a diet of liver," he said, "and are soft and mushy."

PINCHOT URGES BROAD INQUIRY

Governor Demands Sweeping Investigation Of Public Utilities.

Harrisburg, Aug. 10 (AP).—Governor Gifford Pinchot today demanded of the senate a complete investigation of the "system by which the public utilities have controlled the public service commission and established the rates and charges the commission has allowed them to levy and collect."

Appearing before the senate for the second time in three weeks the governor urged an exhaustive survey of the commission's relations with utilities over a period of at least 10 years. The inquiry, he said, is necessary to restore public confidence after the resignation of Chairman W. D. B. Arney on the eve of the senate investigation of charges brought against him of accepting favors from utility executives.

Declaring the public and press joined the demand for a full investigation, Governor Pinchot said, "If the senators represent the people and if the facts are all as we know them to be, there can be no valid excuse for postponing the investigation."

DRIVER SLEEPS AT WHEEL; ONE HURT IN CRASH

Marathon Dancer, With Little Sleep, Drives Off Highway East Of Here.

PASSENGER IS CUT ABOUT HEAD

A marathon dancer, who had only snatches of sleep in twelve days, fell asleep at the wheel of an automobile at The Oaks park along the Lincoln highway, three miles east of here, this morning, and an accident occurred.

As a result of the crash, Allen S. Morton, about 35 years, of Lancaster, is a patient at the Warner hospital suffering from a severely lacerated head and shock.

John Ryrie, 34, of Atlantic City, whose professional name as a marathon dancer is "Johnnie Ray," was driving Morton's machine, a light coach.

Little Sleep in 12 Days

"Johnnie" who also claims he is a prize fighter in the bantam weight class, had been dancing at Maple Grove park, Lancaster, for the past twelve days, and had taken only the regular 15-minute rest periods in which to sleep during that time.

Ryrie dropped out of the contest which he described as a "gyp marathon" on Tuesday morning, and met Morton, Tuesday evening. Morton was going to Pittsburgh on business today, and he promised to take "Johnnie" with him.

"Johnnie" told a local highway patrolman, who investigated the crash, that he did not feel himself going to sleep, and did not wake up until his car left the highway. The machine, traveling west, crossed to the left side of the highway, hit a concrete culvert, then a telephone pole and upset.

Car a Complete Wreck

Morton, who was cut by flying glass, was thrown out of the car. The Gettysburg ambulance was called and he was brought to the hospital. His head was cut from his right ear to the top of the scalp. Ryrie escaped injury.

John H. Deatrick, Biglerville, Adams county health officer, who was following Morton's machine, was an eyewitness of the accident.

The machine was almost a complete wreck, the patrolman said, estimating the damage at $250.

Ryrie said he dropped out of the marathon dance contest because some of the participants were not abiding by the rules and were taking longer rest periods than those allowed.

MARTIAL LAW IN SPANISH CITY

Seven Deaths Occur In Attacks On Madrid Buildings.

Madrid, Aug. 10 (AP).—Spain was virtually under martial law today as the republican government mobilized to stem the spread of a rebellion which apparently was an attempt at a monarchist coup.

In Madrid seven deaths occurred during an attack at dawn on buildings which houses the ministry of war and the premier.

Fragmentary reports from Saville in the southwest said a rebel force had captured the communication building. From Algiers a report said that British troops had landed in the town of Melilla.

The naval garrison on the south-east coast also was reported in mutiny. The causes of the mutiny were obscure.

Communications with outlying cities were impossible. In the Madrid outbreak about a dozen on both sides were wounded. Ninety arrests were made but only 36 of the prisoners were civilians.

"Guinea" Wisler Appropriates Colonel's Boots In Time Of Need

Young Officer In Training At Fort Meade Forced To "Borrow" Regiment Leader's Boots; Eleven Officers From Gettysburg In Camp.

WHEN in camp do as the colonels do," seems to be the slogan adopted by one of Gettysburg's contingent at Fort G. G. Meade for two weeks' instruction in the school of arms.

Apparently in the rush of preparations for departure to camp last week, Second Lieutenant Raymond Wisler, of Gettysburg, forgot to pack his boots along with his other necessary equipment.

All went well until Sunday when a second lieutenant without "his boots" faced the possibility of committing a very grave social error in military circles.

However, Lieutenant Wisler, better known as "Guinea" among his Gettysburg friends, solved the situation in the most peculiar way. He borrowed the "colonel's" boots. Such resourcefulness on the part of a young reserve officer is to be admired at any cost. But our informant failed to tell us of a penalty, if any, that was inflicted upon "Guinea." In any event, the "colonel's boots" saved the day for "a budding young officer."

The contingent of Gettysburgians stationed at Fort Meade with the 316th Infantry regiment, along with several other regiments, forms the 79th division encamped for instruction in the school of arms.

The local officers are as follows: Captain W. G. Weaver, Captain Robert Geiselman, 1st Lieutenants Harold Thomas and Grayson Peters, 2nd Lieutenants Jacob C. Britcher, Jacob M. Sheads, Raymond Wisler, Jacob R. Hershey, Kenneth Bream, Kermit Dardorf and George Hill.

ADAMS ANGLERS MAY EXPECT BIG CATCHES IN '33

Local Fishermen Have County Streams Stocked With Bass And Trout.

SEINES UNLAWFUL

WITHIN a year or two, Adams county may become a fishermen's paradise.

Through the efforts of D. J. Forney, Gettysburg garageman, and other Izaak Waltonians, the state bureau of fisheries and hatcheries is stocking various streams in the county with good-sized trout and bass.

Streams To Be Patrolled

Approximately 3,000 trout, ranging in size from six to eleven inches, were placed in Marsh creek, Conewago creek and Tom's creek, and today a consignment of bass were received from Marsh and Conewago creeks.

Until the fish become larger, game protectors will patrol the streams in which the trout and bass have been placed to prevent seining. Mr. Forney also urged residents along the streams to report any violations of the fish laws until the young fish have been acclimated to their new surroundings.

Trout Are Unsavory

Mr. Forney recalled that several years ago when a number of fish were placed in a certain Adams county stream he received reports that seines were placed in the stream one night and several large cans of young fish were taken from the stream. To guard against a repetition of this occurrence, state fish wardens and local residents will patrol the streams until the fish are larger.

Mr. Forney also pointed out that the young trout and bass placed in the streams are not fit to eat. "They have been raised on a diet of liver," he said, "and are soft and mushy."

PINCHOT URGES BROAD INQUIRY

Governor Demands Sweeping Investigation Of Public Utilities.

Harrisburg, Aug. 10 (AP)—Governor Gifford Pinchot today demanded of the senate a complete investigation of the "system by which the public utilities have controlled the public service commission and established the rates and charges the commission has allowed them to levy and collect."

Appearing before the senate for the second time in three weeks the governor urged an exhaustive survey of the commission's relations with utilities over a period of at least 10 years. The inquiry, he said, is necessary to restore public confidence after the resignation of Chairman W. D. B. Ainey on the eve of the senate investigation of charges brought against him of accepting favors from utility executives.

Declaring the public and press joined the demand for a full investigation, Governor Pinchot said, "If the senators represent the people and if the facts are all as we know them to be, there can be no valid excuse for postponing the investigation."

Marathon Dancer, With Little Sleep, Drives Off Highway East Of Here.

PASSENGER IS CUT ABOUT HEAD

A marathon dancer, who had only snatches of sleep in twelve days, fell asleep at the wheel of an automobile at The Oaks park along the Lincoln highway, three miles east of here, this morning, and an accident occurred.

As a result of the crash, Allen S. Morton, about 35 years, of Lancaster, is a patient at the Warner hospital suffering from a severely lacerated head and shock.

John Ryrie, 34, of Atlantic City, whose professional name as a marathon dancer is "Johnnie Ray," was driving Morton's machine, a light coach.

Little Sleep in 12 Days

"Johnnie" who also claims he is a prize fighter in the bantam weight class, had been dancing at Maple Grove park, Lancaster, for the past twelve days, and had taken only the regular 15-minute rest periods in which to sleep during that time.

Ryrie dropped out of the contest which he described as a "gyp marathon" on Tuesday morning, and met Morton, Tuesday evening. Morton was going to Pittsburgh on business today, and he promised to take "Johnnie" with him.

"Johnnie" told a local highway patrolman, who investigated the crash, that he did not feel himself going to sleep, and did not wake up until his car left the highway. The machine, traveling west, crossed to the left side of the highway, hit a concrete culvert, then a telephone pole and upset.

Car a Complete Wreck

Morton, who was cut by flying glass, was thrown out of the car. The Gettysburg ambulance was called and he was brought to the hospital. His head was cut from his right ear to the top of the scalp. Ryrie escaped injury.

John H. Deatrick, Biglerville, Adams county health officer, who was following Morton's machine, was an eyewitness of the accident.

The machine was almost a complete wreck, the patrolman said, estimating the damage at $250.

Ryrie said he dropped out of the marathon dance contest because some of the participants were not abiding by the rules and were taking longer rest periods than those allowed.

MARTIAL LAW IN SPANISH CITY

Seven Deaths Occur In Attacks On Madrid Buildings.

Madrid, Aug. 10 (AP)—Spain was virtually under martial law today as the republican government mobilized to stem the spread of a rebellion which apparently was an attempt at a monarchist coup.

In Madrid seven deaths occurred during an attack at dawn on buildings which houses the ministry of war and the premier.

Fragmentary reports from Saville in the southwest said a rebel force had captured the communication building. From Algieras in the south near Gibraltar reports said, an army detachment had mutinied in the town of Molina.

The naval garrison on the southeast coast also was reported in mutiny. The causes of the mutiny were obscure.

Communications with outlying cities were impossible. In the Madrid outbreak about a dozen on both sides were wounded. Ninety arrests were made but only 36 of the prisoners were civilians.

Marriage, Divorce
Both Show Decline

"The fewer the marriages the fewer the divorces," said Dr. Emlyn Jones, chief of the bureau of vital statistics, state department of health, as he announced that while the marriage rate last year was the lowest since records had been kept in Pennsylvania, with the exception of the years 1906, 1908 and 1909, the divorce rate also was the lowest since 1922.

The total of 7,241 divorces granted last year, was 780 less than the preceding year, while there were 4,610 fewer marriages than in 1930.

For every divorce granted in 1931, there were approximately eight marriages performed, according to the data released by Dr. Jones. While 124 persons out of each 1,000 population were married in Pennsylvania last year, our neighboring state of Maryland showed thirty persons out of each 1,000 population taking the marriage vows. The rates were also higher in New Jersey, New York and West Virginia.

Issues Copies Of Official Records

During the first six months of the current year, the bureau of vital statistics, state department of health, issued 19,500 certified copies, made from its records to individuals who found it necessary to have them for the transaction of important business. The monthly demand was unusually uniform, running between 3,000 and 3,500 each month.

The bureau received $17,160 in fees for the copies furnished, in accordance with the act of assembly specifying the sum to be charged each applicant. These copies are exact duplicates of the permanent and original certificate filed in the state department of health, and are so certified by Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health. The original, when once filed with the department, is never surrendered for any purpose, but remains forever the property of the commonwealth.

Foot mileage is the result of directing traffic, inspecting cars, examination of prospective operators and investigation work. The patrol's total mileage since January 1, all methods of travel, was 3,907,128.

Daniel Skelly
Has Picture Of General Howard

Reprint From Painting Sent
Local Man By Late Son
Of Famous Leader.

AMONG the souvenirs and memoirs of the Civil war in possession of Daniel A. Skelly, Sr., Chambersburg street, is a picture of Major General O. O. Howard, famous Union leader, sent to him by the third child of the general, the late Lieutenant Colonel J. W. Howard.

The picture of Major General Howard was made by photographing him and his horse, out of a large picture of "General W. T. Sherman and His Generals," which was painted about 1865 or 1866, immediately after the close of the war.

The photograph represents General Howard as he looked during the war. His uniform and the horse equipment, saddle, breast plate and saddle blanket border are all pictured as they were during his engagement at the battle. The general's sleeve of the right arm was always worn buttoned to his coat after he lost the arm two years before the battle here.

Mr. Skelly was intimately acquainted with Major General Howard, whom he escorted to a roof of a building on Baltimore street, during the battle, to make observations.

The state of Maine is planning to dedicate an equestrian statue of General Howard on the battlefield this fall. The site for the monument is located on East Cemetery Hill, northeast of General Hancock's statue.

Mussolini Sees Fascist Spirit
Girdling Globe; Believes Italy
World's Model In Government

By John Evans
Rome (AP).—Mussolini proudly watches the spirit of fascism march around the world.

Being premier of Italy, he must not directly inspire political movements in other countries, but he always holds up Italy as an example of how the proper kind of "revolution" can save a country.

His words often seem addressed to all the rest of the world. "They or us," he said in a message to his black shirts at the beginning of his ninth year in power, picturing the world as a battlefield between his revolutionary ideas and older forms of government.

Fights Reflect Fascism
He sees already, in a dozen countries, outbreaks of turbulent men, frequently like his black shirts who once fought in the streets, knife in one hand, gun in the other, crushing the disorder Italy's feeble government could not or did not control. Then he tossed out the government.

Hitlerism in Germany and Austria, similar movements in Finland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium and Holland, stern "duty" killings in Japan and the fight of Australia's "White Guard" against radicalism—all these encourage the Duce's followers to think the Italian idea will sweep the world.

The band of revolutionary thought which may everywhere soon become action, stretches clear across Europe from south to north.

Hitler and his brown shirts are evident disciples of Mussolini. Hitler was expected to visit the Duce last year, but Mussolini felt it might seem bad form to encourage so openly a revolution in Germany and Austria.

Beans, peas, strawberries and other small fruits are grown as well when backyard gardens have been "paved" as when plowed.

"Indian Givers"
Trading Horses
On Tribal Visits

Ponca City, Aug. 10 (AP).—Gift horses come back to look their Indian owners in the mouth, now that the plains tribes are enjoying their outdoor season.

Tribal visits between tepee villages end invariably with give-away feasts. The visitors go home laden with bolts of calico and blankets and leading gift horses, but when the hosts in turn become guests the same horses frequently are brought back to their former homes as presents.

The federal government long has attempted to discourage the gift custom, but it sticks among the plains Indians who move into the open either as families or tribes each summer. They believe Mother Earth provides many cures for human ailments and that man should live as close to her as possible.

Buys Two Tracts
Of Forest Land

The total area of the Pennsylvania state forests, now in excess of 1,500,000 acres, has been increased by the addition of some 6,000 acres, comprising two tracts recently acquired in Clinton county by the department of forests and waters.

The larger tract, known locally as the Adam Gotschall tract, embracing 5,921 acres in Chapman and Leidy townships, is an interior holding in the Sprout and Susquehanna stock forests. Kettle creek, a famous trout stream of northern Pennsylvania, lies to the north of this woodland, and the headwaters of Faddy's run and Drury's run lie to the south. This section, noted for its hunting and fishing, is typical of the wild and mountainous Black forest region of Pennsylvania. Many old tram roads, formerly used by lumbermen, traverse the area and make it accessible for sportsmen and campers.

The H. H. Fearon tract of 104 acres, acquired as a recent addition to the Sprout state forest, is located in Beech creek township. A new state forest road which will traverse this area is now under construction. According to Alfred E. Rupp, chief of the bureau of lands, the new road will open an extensive territory for hunting and fishing.

Seek New Uses
For State Coal

Pennsylvania's coal industry will not really "come back" until at the mouth of the mine chemists extract coal's valuable elements. Governor Pinchot said today in a letter to Walter H. Glasgow, secretary of mines.

"Not long ago," wrote the governor, "the Cunard liner, Scythia, equipped with oil-burning engines, arrived in New York. For the first time in the history of shipping a colloidal fuel was used—cheap oil impregnated with pulverized coal. Will you inquire whether colloidal fuel promises soon to come into general use? To what extent will it improve the market for Pennsylvania coal?"

"It is important that the department of mines watch closely scientific development which affect the coal business. The future of that business is in the hands of the chemists. The time will come when perhaps $1000 worth of chemicals will come from coal that now costs a couple of dollars a ton."

FIRE PREVENTION

The bureau of fire protection, Pennsylvania state police, announced today that National Fire Prevention week will be designated in Pennsylvania the week of October 9 to 15, inclusive. Marriage, Divorce Both Show Decline

"The fewer the marriages the fewer the divorces," said Dr. Emlyn Jones, chief of the bureau of vital statistics, state department of health, as he announced that while the marriage rate last year was the lowest since records had been kept in Pennsylvania, with the exception of the years 1906, 1908 and 1909, the divorce rate also was the lowest since 1922.

The total of 7,241 divorces granted last year, was 780 less than the preceding year, while there were 4,610 fewer marriages than in 1930.

For every divorce granted in 1931, there were approximately eight marriages performed, according to the data released by Dr. Jones.

While 124 persons out of each 1,000 population were married in Pennsylvania last year, our neighboring state of Maryland showed thirty persons out of each 1,000 population taking the marriage vows. The rates were also higher in New Jersey, New York and West Virginia.

Issues Copies Of Official Records

During the first six months of the current year, the bureau of vital statistics, state department of health, issued 19,500 certified copies, made from its records to individuals who found it necessary to have them for the transaction of important business. The monthly demand was unusually uniform, running between 3000 and 3500 each month.

The bureau received $17,160 in fees for the copies furnished, in accordance with the act of assembly specifying the sum to be charged each applicant.

These copies are exact duplicates of the permanent and original certificate filed in the state department of health, and are so certified by Dr. Theodore B. Appel, secretary of health. The original, when once filed with the department, is never surrendered for any purpose, but remains forever the property of the commonwealth.

Foot mileage is the result of directing traffic, inspecting cars, examination of prospective operators and investigation work. The patrol's total mileage since January 1, all methods of travel, was 3,907,128.

Daniel Skelly Has Picture Of General Howard

Reprint From Painting Sent Local Man By Late Son Of Famous Leader.

AMONG the souvenirs and memoirs of the Civil war in possession of Daniel A. Skelly, Sr., Chambersburg street, is a picture of Major General O. O. Howard, famous Union leader, sent to him by the third child of the general, the late Lieutenant Colonel J. W. Howard.

The picture of Major General Howard was made by photographing him and his horse, out of a large picture of "General W. T. Sherman and His Generals," which was painted about 1865 or 1866, immediately after the close of the war.

The photograph represents General Howard as he looked during the war. His uniform and the horse equipment, bridle, breast plate and saddle blanket border are all pictured as they were during his engagement at the battle. The general's sleeve of the right arm was always worn buttoned to his coat after he lost the arm two years before the battle here.

Mr. Skelly was intimately acquainted with Major General Howard, whom he escorted to a roof of a building on Baltimore street, during the battle, to make observations.

The state of Maine is planning to dedicate an equestrian statue of General Howard on the battlefield this fall. The site for the monument is located on East Cemetery Hill, northeast of General Hancock's statue.

Mussolini Sees Fascist Spirit Girdling Globe; Believes Italy World's Model In Government

By John Evans

Rome (AP).—Mussolini proudly watches the spirit of fascism march around the world.

Being premier of Italy, he must not directly inspire political movements in other countries, but he always holds up Italy as an example of how the proper kind of "revolution" can save a country.

His words often seem addressed to all the rest of the world.

"They or us," he said in a message to his black shirts at the beginning of his ninth year in power, picturing the world as a battlefield between his revolutionary ideas and older forms of government.

He sees already, in a dozen countries, outbreaks of turbulent men, frequently like his black shirts who once fought in the streets, knife in one hand, gun in the other, crushing the disorder Italy's feeble government could not or did not control. Then he tossed out the government.

Hitlerism in Germany and Austria, similar movements in Finland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Belgium and Holland, stern "duty" killings in Japan and the fight of Australia's "White Guard" against radicalism—all these encourage the Duce's followers to think the Italian idea will sweep the world.

The band of revolutionary thought which may everywhere soon become action, stretches clear across Europe from south to north.

Hitler and his brown shirts are evident disciples of Mussolini. Hitler was expected to visit the Duce last year, but Mussolini felt it might seem bad form to encourage so openly a revolution in Germany and Italy.

USES CONCRETE "MULCH"

Washington (AP).—Successful in the use of paper mulch, in conserving moisture and keeping weeds down between plant rows, the department of agriculture is experimenting with concrete as a permanent mulch. Beans, peas, strawberries and other small fruits have grown as well when backyard gardens have been "paved" as when plowed.

"Indian Givers" Trading Horses On Tribal Visits

Ponca City, Aug. 10 (AP).—Gift horses come back to look their Indian owners in the mouth, now that the plains tribes are enjoying their outdoor season.

Tribal visits between tepee villagers end invariably with give-away feasts. The visitors go home laden with bolts of calico and blankets and leading gift horses, but when the hosts in turn become guests the same horses frequently are brought back to their former homes as presents.

The federal government long has attempted to discourage the gift custom, but it sticks among the plains Indians who move into the open either as families or tribes each summer. They believe Mother Earth provides many cures for human ailments and that man should live as close to her as possible.

Buys Two Tracts Of Forest Land

The total area of the Pennsylvania state forests, now in excess of 1,500,000 acres, has been increased by the addition of some 6,000 acres, comprising two tracts recently acquired in Clinton county by the department of forests and waters.

The larger tract, known locally as the Adam Gotschall tract, embracing 5,921 acres in Chapman and Ledy township, is an interior holding in the Sprout and Susquehanna state forests. Kettle creek, a famous trout stream of northern Pennsylvania, lies to the north of this woodland, and the headwaters of Paddy's run and Drury's run lie to the south. This section, noted for its hunting and fishing, is typical of the wild and mountainous Black forest region of Pennsylvania. Many old tram roads, formerly used by lumbermen, traverse the area and make it accessible for sportsmen and campers.

The H. H. Fearon tract of 104 acres, acquired as a recent addition to the Sprout state forest, is located in Beech creek township. A new state forest road which will traverse this area is now under construction. According to Alfred E. Rupp, chief of the bureau of lands, the new road will open an extensive territory for hunting and fishing.

Seek New Uses For State Coal

Pennsylvania's coal industry will not really "come back" until at the mouth of the mine chemists extract coal's valuable elements. Governor Pinchot said today in a letter to Walter H. Glasgow, secretary of mines.

"Not long ago," wrote the governor, "the Cunard liner, Seythia, equipped with oil-burning engines, arrived in New York. For the first time in the history of shipping a colloidal fuel was used—cheap oil impregnated with pulverized coal. Will you inquire whether colloidal fuel promises soon to come into general use? To what extent will it improve the market for Pennsylvania coal?"

"It is important that the department of mines watch closely scientific development which affect the coal business. The future of that business is in the hands of the chemists. The time will come when perhaps $1,000 worth of chemicals will come from coal that now costs a couple of dollars a ton."

FIRE PREVENTION

The bureau of fire protection, Pennsylvania state police, announced today that National Fire Prevention week will be designated in Pennsylvania the week of October 9 to 15, inclusive. Fire bureau officials are now preparing a general program of activities which can be applied to local conditions. Fire prevention week is observed yearly as a means of arousing and stimulating public interest in combating preventable and needless fire losses.

The Faithful Cheat

BY RUBY M. AYRES

SYNOPSIS: Sondra Kent rebels against the prospect of living with Mark Merriman, to whom she is secretly married. She bears a resemblance to the woman from the Congo. She loves John Anderson, who proposes that she go to the ocean to recover from illness, and tells her to be loyal to Mark.

Chapter 27

BROKEN ENGAGEMENTS

Anderson drew himself up sharply; then he laid both hands on Sondra's shoulders, not to draw her to him as she thought, but to hold her away. "Do you think it would be quite fair to Merriman?" he asked with an effort.

The old rebellious look flashed across her face.

"I don't care—" she began, then stopped.

There was a little silence, then Anderson took his hands away and turned to the door.

"I shall ring up in the morning to know how you are."

"We haven't a telephone."

"Oh... well, then I'll write."

"I thought you hated writing letters."

He hesitated. "Well—perhaps I'll call."

Her face brightened a little.

"Yes, please call. I'll be very good."

The door shut behind him.

Sondra stooped and picked up a long strand of brown seaweed that a tiny wave had left close to her feet.

"I suppose you must go back to town tonight?" she said.

"I'm afraid so."

Anderson stood still and looked out over the sea. He wore no hat and the soft breeze had ruffled his hair, giving him a surprising look of youth. Sondra laughed as she looked at him.

"Do you know I've never seen you look so thoroughly untidy," she said. "Or so—" or so happy she had been going to add, but stopped.

Anderson laughed, too, and passed a hand across his hair.

"You look rather a scaramouche yourself, young woman," he told her with pretended severity, his eyes wandering over her slender figure.

She was wearing a white frock, sleeveless and cut low at the neck, and she had taken off her shoes and stockings and slung them carelessly over her arm.

"It was a glorious evening, with a blue cloudless sky, faintly tinged with the first glow of a glorious sunset."

Sondra had been four days at the quaint little cottage that stood back in a sheltered angle of the coast, and already she felt a different creature.

"I never thought I could enjoy a holiday like this," she said with a little grimace. "Old clothes—nothing to do but walk and bathe and sleep—"

"And eat," he supplemented comically. "I've never seen anyone with such an enormous appetite as you have developed."

She made a little grimace. "I don't see how you can know—you don't have meals with me—except dinner."

She had been up each night to dine at the hotel where Anderson was staying.

She gave a quick little sigh. "It will be deadly when you've gone," she said.

"You'll soon find someone to take my place," he assured her. "And even if you don't—" he broke off, to go—after a moment more briskly. "I've behaved disgracefully as it is—breaking engagements in town at the last moment. People will be wondering what the attraction is."

"All the best people are out of town now, John."

They strolled on close to the edge of the water.

"How long do you think I had better stay here?" she asked suddenly.

"As long as you like," Anderson was busily engaged lighting his pipe. "Or until you have to come back."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Only that we may hear soon when Merriman is expected."

"Oh."

A shadow crossed her radiant face; during the last few days she had forgotten all about Mark.

"We can't hear just yet, can we?" she asked. "And anyway it's a long voyage."

She shivered, and he asked quickly. "You're not cold?"

"No—but I think someone walked over my grave."

"I think you had better put on your shoes and stockings; the sun's going down."

She said after a moment. "I think you might stay until after dinner at any rate."

"I'm afraid I can't."

"Do you have to be there early?"

"Yes—I've got a luncheon engagement."

"Who with?"

He told her unhesitatingly.

"With the Symonses."

Sondra's face changed. "Oh... isn't there a red-haired daughter?"

An amused smile flickered through his eyes.

"You know quite well there is," he said calmly.

They had reached a rugged breakwater which ran far out into the sea, and Sondra sat down on a broken pile, and began dragging on her stockings. Anderson watched her silently.

"I should have thought—" she said, her eyes intent on her task, "that it is far nicer down here than up in town having a stuffy lunch."

"It probably is," he agreed, "but this is a long standing engagement."

"And therefore cannot be broken," she added with sarcasm.

"I only intended to stay one day when I brought you down," he reminded her.

"You could have gone back sooner if you'd chosen," she retorted childishly.

She paused for a moment in her task and looked out over the sea; some people were bathing a little distance away and their laughter and voices came clearly through the quiet evening.

Sondra said suddenly. "I've a great mind to run back for my bathing dress and have a dip before dinner."

"You won't do anything of the sort," Anderson retorted calmly.

"You've been in twice today already and it's getting late."

"What time is it?"

"Nearly seven."

She looked rebellious. "I don't see why I shouldn't," she murmured.

Anderson laughed. "But then you never see why you shouldn't do a thing you want to do," he retorted calmly. "Three times in one day is too often to bathe; you'd probably get the cramp, and I should have to dash in and save you and spoil the only suit I've got with me."

She flashed him a quick glance. "It might pay you better to let me drown," she said.

Anderson sat down a little distance from her and began lazily throwing pebbles into the sea.

"I call that blatant fishing for compliments," he said.

Sondra frowned and leaned her chin in her hand.

She had been happy during these few days by the sea. Anderson had spent most of the time with her, driving around the country, or walking the long golden sands.

They had talked of all sorts of things but never of any serious matters, and Mark's name had not been mentioned until a moment ago, and she thought that then it was as if he deliberately brought her mind back to the future, defying her to forget her responsibilities.

It was as if someone had drawn a cloud across the face of the sun, as if a stern hand had been laid on the light-hearted irresponsibility to which she had entirely given herself, reminding her that it must end. She looked again at the sea where now only a solitary bather was splashing in the sunlight—he looked lonely she thought, lonely as Anderson had suddenly made her feel.

She said with a hard note in her voice—

"I can't remember that you have ever paid me a compliment in all your life."

He looked at her with a whimsical smile.

"Why gild the lily?" he quoted lightly. "Besides I haven't known you all my life."

She looked at him from under her dark lashes.

"Are you ever serious?" she asked exasperately.

"It has been known," he answered. She stood up with a half shrug of her shoulders.

"Well, I suppose we may as well go home. You seem to—" she broke off, turning her face towards the sea, shading her eyes against the brilliant light of the setting sun.

"Look—" she pointed to the bather, "listen!"

A sudden ringing cry for help came to them from the sea.

The Faithful Cheat

BY RUBY M. AYRES

SYNOPSIS: Sondra Kent rebels against the prospect of living with Mark Merriman, to whom she is secretly married, when she hears he is returning from the Congo. She loves John Anderson, who proposes that she go to the ocean to recover from illness, and tells her to be loyal to Mark.

Chapter 27

BROKEN ENGAGEMENTS

Anderson drew himself up sharply; then he laid both hands on Sondra's shoulders, not to draw her to him as she thought, but to hold her away. "Do you think it would be quite fair to Merriman?" he asked with an effort.

The old rebellious look flashed across her face—"I don't care—" she began, then stopped.

There was a little silence, then Anderson took his hands away and turned to the door.

"I shall ring up in the morning to know how you are."

"We haven't a telephone." "Oh... well, then I'll write." "I thought you hated writing letters."

He hesitated. "Well—perhaps I'll call."

Her face brightened a little. "Yes, please call. I'll be very good."

The door shut behind him. Sondra stooped and picked up a long strand of brown seaweed that a tiny wave had left close to her feet.

"I suppose you must go back to town tonight?" she said.

"I'm afraid so."

Anderson stood still and looked out over the sea. He wore no hat and the soft breeze had ruffled his hair, giving him a surprising look of youth. Sondra laughed as she looked at him.

"Do you know I've never seen you look so thoroughly untidy," she said. "Or so—" or so happy she had been going to add, but stopped.

Anderson laughed, too, and passed a hand across his hair.

"You look rather a scarecrow yourself, young woman," he told her with pretended severity, his eyes wandering over her slender figure. She was wearing a white frock, sleeveless and cut low at the neck, and she had taken off her shoes and stockings and slung them carelessly over her arm.

It was a glorious evening, with a blue cloudless sky, faintly tinged with the first glow of a glorious sunset.

Sondra had been four days at the quaint little cottage that stood back in a sheltered angle of the coast, and already she felt a different creature.

"I never thought I could enjoy a holiday like this," she said with a little grimace. "Old clothes—nothing to do but walk and bathe and sleep—"

"And eat," he supplemented comically. "I've never seen anyone with such an enormous appetite as you have developed."

She made a little grimace. "I don't see how you can know—you don't have meals with me—except dinner."

She had been up each night to dine at the hotel where Anderson was staying.

She gave a quick little sigh. "It will be dead when you've gone," she said.

"You'll soon find someone to take my place," he assured her. "And even if you don't," he broke off, to go on after a moment more briskly. "I've behaved disgracefully as it is—breaking engagements in town at the last moment. People will be wondering what the attraction is."

"All the best people are out of town now, John."

They strolled on close to the edge of the water.

"How long do you think I had better stay here?" she asked suddenly.

"As long as you like," Anderson was busily engaged lighting his pipe. "Or until you have to come back."

"What do you mean by that?" "Only that we may hear soon when Merriman is expected."

"Oh."

A shadow crossed her radiant face; during the last few days she had forgotten all about Mark.

"We can't hear just yet, can we?" she asked. "And anyway it's a long voyage."

She shivered, and he asked quickly. "You're not cold?"

"No—but I think someone walked over my grave."

"I think you had better put on your shoes and stockings; the sun's going down."

She said after a moment, "I think you might stay until after dinner at any rate."

"I'm afraid I can't."

"Do you have to be there early?"

"Yes—I've got a luncheon engagement."

"Who with?"

He told her unhesitatingly.

"With the Symonses."

Sondra's face changed. "Oh... isn't there a red-haired daughter?"

An amused smile flickered through his eyes.

"You know quite well there is," he said calmly.

They had reached a rugged breakwater which ran far out into the sea, and Sondra sat down on a broken pile, and began dragging on her stockings. Anderson watched her silently.

"I should have thought—" she said, her eyes intent on her task, "that it is far nicer down here than up in town having a stuffy lunch."

"It probably is," he agreed, "but this is a long standing engagement."

"And therefore cannot be broken," she added with sarcasm.

"I only intended to stay one day when I brought you down," he reminded her.

"You could have gone back sooner if you'd chosen," she retorted childishly.

She paused for a moment in her task and looked out over the sea; some people were bathing a little distance away and their laughter and voices came clearly through the quiet evening.

Sondra said suddenly, "I've a great mind to run back for my bathing dress and have a dip before dinner."

"You won't do anything of the sort," Anderson retorted calmly. "You've been in twice today already and it's getting late."

"What time is it?" "Nearly seven."

She looked rebellious. "I don't see why I shouldn't," she murmured.

Anderson laughed. "But then you never see why you shouldn't do a thing you want to do," he retorted calmly. "Three times in one day is too often to bathe; you'd probably get the cramp, and I should have to dash in and save you and spoil the only suit I've got with me."

She flashed him a quick glance. "It might pay you better to let me drown," she said.

Anderson sat down a little distance from her and began lazily throwing pebbles into the sea.

"I call that blatant fishing for compliments," he said.

Sondra frowned and leaned her chin in her hand.

She had been happy during these few days by the sea. Anderson had spent most of the time with her, driving around the country, or walking the long golden sands.

They had talked of all sorts of things but never of any serious matters, and Mark's name had not been mentioned until a moment ago, and she thought that then it was as if he deliberately brought her mind back to the future, defying her to forget her responsibilities.

It was as if someone had drawn a cloud across the face of the sun, as if a stern hand had been laid on the light-hearted irresponsibility to which she had entirely given herself, reminding her that it must end. She looked again at the sea where now only a solitary bather was splashing in the sunlight—he looked lonely she thought, lonely as Anderson had suddenly made her feel.

She said with a hard note in her voice—

"I can't remember that you have ever paid me a compliment in all your life."

He looked at her with a whimsical smile.

"Why gild the lily?" he quoted lightly. "Besides I haven't known you all my life."

She looked at him from under her dark lashes.

"Are you ever serious?" she asked exasperately.

"It has been known," he answered. She stood up with a half shrug of her shoulders.

"Well, I suppose we may as well go home. You seem to—" she broke off, turning her face towards the sea, shading her eyes against the brilliant light of the setting sun.

"Look—" she pointed to the bather. "Listen!"

A sudden ringing cry for help came to them from the sea.

Coroner Drops Murder Theory

Lebanon, Aug. 10 (AP)—John W. Wolfe, 50, Lebanon policeman, believed to have been murdered by a marauder at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning while the office was watching a butcher shop on a tip that it was likely to be robbed, was later declared by Coroner Manbeck to have died a natural death.

An examination disclosed no exterior wounds and an investigation revealed a history of heart trouble. Mrs. Samuel Miller, at home alone with two small children in an apartment in the building, discovered the body when she heard a thud in the rear of the house, giving rise to much excitement. Wolfe leaves seven children. He was married three times.

HOUSE DEFIES PINCHOT, ACTS TO SHIFT FUND

Legislators Aim To Divert $12,000,000 Highway Funds To Relief.

Harrisburg, Aug. 10.—With Governor Pinchot denouncing the scheme to take $12,000,000 out of the motor license fund and spend it for relief, the house of representatives Tuesday stubbornly went forward with it, passing the measure on second reading.

The governor insisted that the motor license fund should be expended for roads and nothing else; that the commonwealth is bound in honor not to touch it for any other purpose. In a ringing statement he called upon the legislature to "face the facts and do the job they have dodged for seven weeks."

Two powerful arguments are being used here, and they are making some headway even with the country members, to further the Witkin-Blumberg motor license fund transfer bill.

One is the statement—really an argument, because the matter is debatable—that there actually exists in the state treasury, or is in prospect, enough money to finance relief, if the governor and his aides would admit it.

The other is that the state highway department has been used in a radical manner by the Pinchot administration in recent campaigns to give jobs to those who would vote the Pinchot way in local and state fights. This is a renewal of a charge that has been repeatedly made.

The governor, in his statement opposing the transfer, did not specifically make the threat that he would veto it, but he did declare that he will "sign no more trick bills," and he made it clear that he will not approve the $12,000,000 appropriation bill for relief sponsored by Representative Talbot unless there is behind it positive assurance that money will be available to make it good.

Coroner Joseph Finan gave a verdict of suicide, believing she was temporarily deranged. Another daughter, two weeks old, also survives.

One Smoker tells Another

IT is perfectly natural for smokers to talk to each other about what they smoke and why they smoke a certain brand. Tastes differ, and therefore different people smoke different kinds of cigarettes. Those who smoke CHESTERFIELDS seem to take more pride in telling other smokers — "that CHESTERFIELDS are milder; that there is no harshness — no bitterness." They also tell them — "that CHESTERFIELDS taste better: that they have a pleasing aroma." . . . CHESTERFIELDS are clicking with millions.

How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them!

If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand:
when I awake, I am still with thee.

Surely thou wilt slay the wicked,
O God: thy bloody men.

For they speak against thee wickedly, and thine enemies take thy name in vain.

Do not I hate them, O Lord, that hate thee? and am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee?

I hate them with perfect hatred:
I count them mine enemies.

Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts.

way in me, and lead me in the

"Lindy" Bills Seen

$90 in Ransom Money Held In Nova Scotia; Bills Were Obtained
In Virginia.

Halifax, N. S., Aug. 10 (AP).—

Three $20 bills, two tens and two fives were definitely identified by police Tuesday as bearing serial numbers corresponding to those on ransom money paid in the Lindbergh kidnapping case.

Police said they did not know whether the plate numbers, a small series in the right hand corner of the bills, corresponded to those on the $50,000 in bills thrown over a cemetery hedge in the Bronx, by Dr.
John F. Condon on April 2, a month and a day after the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped.

The bills were deposited by Miss Carrie Anderson, a nurse of Hampton, Virginia, at the Bank of Nova Scotia, at Albert, New Brunswick, last week. Bank officials turned them over to the Royal Canadian mounted police at Moncton.

Miss Anderson, who was in Moncton Tuesday, said she had obtained the $90 from a bank in Hampton, Virginia.

STIMSON SPEECH AROUSES IRE OF OFFICIAL JAPAN

Tokyo Asks Detailed Report, Hinting Protest At Manchurian Action.

Tokyo, Aug. 10 (AP).—Indignant at Secretary of State Stimson's references to Japan's line of action in Manchuria, the foreign office Tuesday cabled for a detailed report of his Monday night address in New York, with a view of protesting to Washington.

The Japanese embassy in the American capital was instructed to make clear exactly what the secretary said. The foreign office may make "suitable representations" in the event the official version bears out press accounts of the address.

The chief point of Mr. Stimson's speech was that the Briand-Kellogg treaty outlawing war implicitly provided for consultation among the signers to mobilize moral disapproval of acts of aggression. In explaining this point the secretary referred to the Sino-Japanese conflict, noting that the United States, and subsequently the league, informed Japan and China that no settlement resulting from the use of arms would be recognized.

Tokyo officials said they especially disliked what they described as an unmistakable implication that Japan was the aggressor in Manchuria, against whom the whole world organized and mobilized as never before.

All of Tuesday afternoon's papers gave prominent display to interviews with the foreign office spokesman, in which he was quoted as voicing indignation over the Manchurian references in the Stimson speech. Influential official elements were behind the move to make representations to Washington.

Just Folks

EDGAR A. GUEST

TEN-YEAR-OLD

Our nine-year-old who went to bed
Last night has disappeared.
Some time throughout the night she fled

Precisely as I'd feared,
But in her place we now behold
A little lady, ten years old.

Some think no change in her they see.

She looks the same, they swear,
But it is very plain to me
That seated in her chair
Where once a nine-year-old held sway

A miss of ten years rules today.

Now, if when children talk you list
You'll understand it when I say that differences exist
Twixt nine years old and ten.

The elder miss is wiser far
Than all the nine-year maidens are.
Dear Lord, I pray, to her be kind
And bless her through the years.

When childhood must be left behind
And womanhood appears,
May she, turned ten years old today,
Follow her mother's lovely way.

CURFEW RINGS NIGHTLY FOR SYDNEY BURGLARS

Sydney, Australia (AP).—Curfew law has been brought into operation against burglars by Judge
Sheridan of the local criminal court.

Instead of sending certain classes of thieves to cells, he releases them on bond not to be on the streets after 11 o'clock at night.

"This is no hardship," says the judge, "but it may remove these men from the temptation of stealing under cover of darkness.

How precious also are thy thoughts unto me, O God! how great is the sum of them!
If I should count them, they are more in number than the sand: when I awake, I am still with thee.
Surely thou wilt slay the wicked, O God: depart from me, therefore, ye bloody men.
For they speak against thee wickedly, and thine enemies take thy name in vain.
Do not I hate them, O Lord, that hate thee? and am not I grieved with those that rise up against thee?
I hate them with perfect hatred: I count them mine enemies.
Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me, and know my thoughts.
And see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.

STIMSON SPEECH AROUSES IRE OF OFFICIAL JAPAN

Tokyo Asks Detailed Report, Hinting Protest At Manchurian Action.

Tokyo, Aug. 10 (AP)—Indignant at Secretary of State Stimson's references to Japan's line of action in Manchuria, the foreign office Tuesday cabled for a detailed report of his Monday night address in New York, with a view of protesting to Washington.

The Japanese embassy in the American capital was instructed to make clear exactly what the secretary said. The foreign office may make "suitable representations" in the event the official version bears out press accounts of the address.

The chief point of Mr. Stimson's speech was that the Briand-Kellogg treaty outlawing war implicitly provided for consultation among the signers to mobilize moral disapproval of acts of aggression. In explaining this point the secretary referred to the Sino-Japanese conflict, noting that the United States, and subsequently the league, informed Japan and China that no settlement resulting from the use of arms would be recognized.

Tokyo officials said they especially disliked what they described as an unmistakable implication that Japan was the aggressor in Manchuria, against whom the whole world organized and mobilized as never before.

All of Tuesday afternoon's papers gave prominent display to interviews with the foreign office spokesmen, in which he was quoted as voicing indignation over the Manchurian references in the Stimson speech. Influential official elements were behind the move to make representations to Washington.

Just Folks

TEN-YEAR-OLD

Our last-year-old who went to bed Last night has disappeared. Some time throughout the night she fled Precisely as I'd feared, But in her place we now behold A little lady, ten years old.

Some think no change in her they see. She looks the same, they swear, But it is very plain to me That seated in her chair Where once a nine-year-old held sway A miss of ten years rules today.

Now, if when children talk you list You'll understand it when I say that differences exist Twixt nine years old and ten. The elder miss is wiser far Than all the nine-year maidens are. Dear Lord, I pray, to her be kind And bless her through the years. When childhood must be left behind And womanhood appears, May she, turned ten years old today, Follow her mother's lovely way.

CURFEW RINGS NIGHTLY FOR SYDNEY BURGLARS

Sydney, Australia (AP)—Curfew law has been brought into operation against burglars by Judge Sheridan of the local criminal court.

Instead of sending certain classes of thieves to cells, he releases them on bond not to be on the streets after 11 o'clock at night.

"This is no hardship," says the judge, "but it may remove these men from the temptation of stealing under cover of darkness."

TODAY'S TALK
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON REAPING
IT is said that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." Largely does this apply to one during life, but what happens after the mortal body has taken upon itself immortality?
Again it has been said that the good that men do lives after them. It was upon this fact that I trained my thoughts the other day, as I planned out construction that I knew would far outlast me. Then it was that I began to speculate upon the happiness and pleasure that those days would sometime bring to someone else. I wondered if all the painstaking and the thrill of creation would then become evident.

Each one of us today enjoys pleasures and conveniences and untold happiness because of the thoughtfulness and planning and sacrifices of others.

The other day I visited a beautiful estate of several thousands of acres in a lovely country. Over 500 acres had long ago been cleared, a home built and family after family been reared upon its ground. But when the original owner took that place it was but a vast forest and very wild. We walked out into a great space where a magnificent garden had been created. Hundreds of roses were in bloom. My thoughts were fastened upon the memory of the man who worked and tilled that soil that others might reap the beauty and comfort from it.

We may be very imperfect in ourselves, but the good and fine that we create and form passes on—we know not to where nor to whom. But that should not concern us. Only should we glory in the fact that we can render this service that lives after us.

Especially in the literature and art of the world is there a great reaping. Countless ages are inspired and blessed and made rich by the aspirations of noble and unselfish minds.

Every tiller of the soil must think of the larger number of human beings he is forever making happy through the fruits of his toil. And all creative artists must grow very happy as they work on, even though there may not be immediate understanding and appreciation.

What we are here and now becomes the evidence of what we are to be in the thoughts and memory of those who follow us—and who reap from the harvest we sow.

State Senator From 24th District Dies; To Elect Successor

Williamsport, Aug. 10 (AP)—Less than 24 hours after the death of State Senator Fred M. Sprout, of Muncy, plans were under way for the selection of his successor.

Senator Sprout apparently had recovered from an illness of several weeks ago but was stricken with a heart attack Sunday night. He died Monday.

It was announced in Harrisburg Monday night that his successor will be chosen at a special election, probably in connection with the regular election November 8. Candidates will be chosen by the county committees of Columbia, Montour, Lycoming and Sullivan counties, comprising the 24th district.

He was president of the Muncy Water company, a director of the Citizens National bank, of Muncy, and a trustee of the Danville state hospital. Survivors are his widow, two daughters and a son.

PROSECUTOR OF CAPONE NAMED TO JUDGESHIP

President Promotes District Attorney Johnson To U. S. District Judge.

Washington, Aug. 10 (AP)—George E. Q. Johnson, United States attorney at Chicago, and his young assistant, Dwight H. Green—both leading actors in the courtroom drama that resulted in sending Al Capone to the federal penitentiary—were promoted by President Hoover Tuesday, Johnson to be a district judge and Green to the district attorneyship.

Johnson was named judge for the northern district of Illinois. Both are recess appointments and must be confirmed by the next senate.

Elevation of the two federal prosecutors marked the third promotion awarded by the president for those who were active in sending the notorious Chicago gangster to the penitentiary.

Wilkerson Promotion Blocked
Last March Mr. Hoover nominated Judge James H. Wilkerson, who sentenced Capone, to the circuit court bench, but the appointment never got out of the senate judiciary committee and it died with adjournment. He can be given a recess appointment or his name resubmitted when congress convenes in December.

Several public hearings were held on the Wilkerson nomination, Senator Glenn, republican, Illinois, leading the defense of the jurist against charges of discrimination in his granting of an injunction in 1922 in the railway shopmen's strike.

Johnson In Office Five Years
Johnson has been in his present post since 1927. Fifty-eight years of age, he has practiced law in Chicago since 1910.

Green is only 35. He was admitted to the bar ten years ago. Named a special attorney for the bureau of internal revenue in 1926, he became a special assistant to Johnson a year later was active in preparing the income-tax evasion charges against Capone.

Accused Aviator Reveals Love Affair

Lancaster Says Clarke Promised To Care For Woman; State Presses Charge.

Miami, Fla., Aug. 10 (AP)—Captain W. N. Lancaster testified in his murder trial Tuesday that Haden Clarke had promised him before he left on a business trip to the west that he would care for Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller "so that I would remember his friendship."

The state charges Lancaster shot Clarke to death after the latter had replaced him in the affections of Mrs. Keith-Miller, his Australian flying partner.

Lancaster said Clarke made the promise after he had cautioned Clarke to keep Mrs. Keith-Miller from drinking too heavily during his absence.

"When she drank heavily her conduct was not normal," Lancaster testified.

Clarke was shot April 21, less than 12 hours after Lancaster returned from his western trip on learning that the two planned to marry.

Lancaster told how his admiration for Mrs. J. M. Keith-Miller bloomed to love during their London to Australia flight in 1927-28.

"We were in the public eye at that time, of course, and after our arrival in Australia we had little opportunity to see each other," he testified.

leaning forward in the witness chair, "Since the long Australian flight, my love for Mrs. Keith-Miller has increased during the years."

A Soaring Hen

Missing Fowl Is Found In Tree With Family Of Four Baby Chicks.

Harrisburg, Aug. 10.—For three weeks one of the Plymouth Rock hens of Mrs. Rebecca Reed and her husband, William E. Reed, farmer of near Halifax, was missing. She was a pet hen and hence conspicuous by her absence.

Then one day recently Mrs. Reed found a dead chick at the foot of a large tree about 100 feet from the house.

She looked up, and there, twelve feet above her, nestled in the crotch of the tree, was the hen. Under her were four three-day-old chicks.

The hen made her nest in the tree, laid the eggs, flew down for food and then returned to her hatching.

The chicks were left in the tree. When they're old enough they'll fly to the ground.

Reed is a republican county committeeman from Halifax township.

Augusta, Kansas, has been added to the list of cities without a general tax levy. Sale of electricity and water pays municipal expenses.

Rebels Holding On

Neither Side Can Claim Victory In Fights—Over Scattered Fronts.

Rio De Janeiro, Aug. 10 (AP).—Brazilian federal troops and the Sao Paulo rebels fought each other on widely scattered fronts Tuesday without any signs of a major victory for either.

General Monteiro, leader of the federal forces, claimed steady gains near Queluz, barely within San Paulo state, but he admitted the rebels' resistance was "tenacious" and the casualties were heavy.

Refugees said the rebels lost 1,000 men in one sector alone and their hospitals were crowded. The federalists have not published their casualty lists, but hospital units in Minas Geraes state have been exceedingly active.

Federal airplanes have been unable to locate a battery of mysteriously concealed rebel artillery which has kept up an intermittent bombardment from a hill top in the tunnel zone.

South Is Wealthy

Rise In Cotton Price To $5-bale—upswing Increases Trading Generally.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 10 (AP).—The south jingled new money in its pockets Tuesday and figured it was several million dollars richer, at least on paper, as a result of the $5-a-bale upswing in cotton.

As the rise in price increased trading, appeals came from several sources for the federal farm board to withhold the stabilization cotton it controls from the market.

Prices upward of seven cents a pound, an advance of approximately 40 per cent from the early June lows were quoted for cotton Monday after the department of agriculture's announcement it estimated the crop at 11,306,000 bales; 5,790,000 lower than last year and 3,353,000 less than the average for the past five years.

Time and money spent in spreading disease among grasshoppers to control an outbreak are wasted, says Dr. W. H. Larrimer, of the department of agriculture.

My Beauty Hint
By Irene Danne
I believe the early morning dew and the British fogs are wonderful stimulants and fresheners for the skin.
Since California does not have these morning dews, I have compounded a skin freshener very similar in effect to nature's stimulant, and with a spray like a perfume atomizer. I apply this to my neck and face.
The effect is startling. A tonic, vital freshness is awakened in the skin, and a healthy glow and fineness of texture results from the daily use of such a preparation.

B. E. F. FORCES
MEET FIREMEN
Benefit Baseball Game With
Vets Camped Here To Be Played Thursday.

Arrangements for a benefit baseball game for the B. E. F. camp established near town were completed Tuesday.
The game will be played between the Gettysburg fire company and the B. E. F. nine on the academy field Thursday evening at 5:45 o'clock. No admission will be charged but an offering will be lifted which will be turned over to camp officials.

The ex-service contingent promises to put a strong team on the field. Several of their number are ex-professional players and claim good records.
Practice All Day
Tuesday the soldiers went through an all-day practice session with another long drill promised for today. Ex-aviators, infantrymen, cavalrymen, and radio experts will be included in the veterans' lineup.

Although the ex-service team's lineup is quite problematical the lineup will include: M. Eldon, cf.; R. Mennerce, 3b.; T. Lester, 1b.; A. Dawson, A. Woods and E. Dixon on pitchers; J. F. Barrow, rf.; W. Fayette, lf.; R. Kruth, ss.; L. Gammond, 2b.; P. J. Genteman and C. Peterson, catchers; C. K. Hardin, John Halowick, N. Temper, utility, and J. M. Grace, manager.
The smoke-eaters will choose their lineup from Hen Bream G. Bream, Buehler, Hutchison, Woodward, Frank and Charlie Yingling, Myers, Bender, Palmer and Robert.

Bendersville will play the strong state hospital nine of Harrisburg Thursday evening at Bendersville. Last week the doctors slashed their way to a 2-1 decision over the upper countians in a game played at Harrisburg and the county league leaders are bent on revenge. The game will start at 5:15 p. m.

This evening the Epco nine plays a return game at Biglerville. The locals won handily, 9-1, in their meeting here Monday.
Reports to the effect that Cash-town will play its remaining league games all away from home are unfounded, according to the Cashtown club officials. Regrading the wavy outfield is being done this week but the work will not interfere with the scheduled games. Gettysburg plays at Cashtown Saturday.

Doc Crist's fast moving ball club is the featured attraction at a festival to be staged this evening at Hunterstown. The Cristies play at Two Taverns Friday evening.

GERMANY VOTES
DEATH PENALTY
FOR TERRORISTS
Von Hindenburg Supports
Measures; Hitler Pleads
For Order.
Berlin, Aug. 10 (AP)—The government Tuesday night invoked extraordinary powers, including the death penalty, in an effort to put a stop to outbursts of political violence which have resulted in the killing of at least 140 persons and serious injuries to more than 1,000 since June 1.
With the approval of President von Hindenburg, three emergency decrees were issued by Chancellor von Papen.
One of these extended the political truce to September 1. Another set up heavy penalties, including sentence of death, for acts of terrorism. The third instituted special "speed" courts to deal summarily with offenders.
Two More Are Killed
Tuesday night's publication of the decrees coincided with a string of further outrages in which two men were killed.
At Dillenburg a young reichsbannerman was shot dead at his window. At Dormund a communist was shot dead from an automobile. Fierce fighting at the funeral of a national socialist victim in Chemnitz resulted in the arrest of nineteen persons.
One of Tuesday's decrees stipulates that convicted offenders will not benefit from any future amnesty.
The situation was considered so critical that the government did not wait for President von Hindenburg to return from his country estate at Neudeck, in East Prussia, before clothing itself with emergency authority.
The substance of the three decrees was conveyed to the president by telephone, and he approved them.
Meanwhile Adolf Hitler, whose Nazi storm troopers are held accountable for much of the violence, took steps to check the political passions of his followers.
Hitler Demands Discipline
Furious because of outbursts in which storm troop detachments participated, notably in East Prussia and Schleswig-Holstein, Herr Hitler issued most stringent orders that discipline must be maintained.
Complete statistics on the casualties since Von Papen became chancellor June 1 are not available. But it is certain that the dead include fifty communists, eighteen members of the republican reichsbanner organization, twenty-seven Nazis, one member of the steel helmet war veterans' organization, five policemen and thirty-nine innocent bystanders, including four women.

PURDYS ENTERTAIN
AT MARSH CREEK

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Purdy entertained a group of thirty guests at their bungalow at Marsh Creek heights Sunday, August 7. A picnic dinner was served on one of the porch verandas and water sports were enjoyed in the afternoon. Those present included: Mr. and Mrs. Isaac H. Weikert and daughters, Margaret and Mildred, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Carbaugh, daughter, Shirley, and son, Robert, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Derr, Howard Carbaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cluck and daughter, Kathryn, all of Gettysburg; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. P. Weikert and granddaughters, Dorothy and Lois, and Miss Belle Weikert, of McKnightstown; C. Robert Weikert and daughters, Frances and Ruth, of York; Mr. and Mrs. J. George Weikert and granddaughter, Lenore, of Ft. Washington, and Mr. and Mrs. Edgar T. Johnson, of Baltimore, Maryland.

Games will be played on the playground diamond Thursday evening between the Epco and All Star teams. The All Stars won the first tilt.
Arendtsville is keeping right at the heels of Bendersville in the race for the county league honors. Both teams are playing fast, snappy ball.
Gettysburg's chances for the second half honors were rudely jolted by Bendersville but the locals still figure they have a chance and are determined to fight it out.

My Beauty Hint
By Irene Dunne
I believe the early morning dew and the British fogs are wonderful stimulants and fresheners for the skin.
Since California does not have these morning dews, I have compounded a skin freshener very similar in effect to nature's stimulant, and with a spray like a perfume atomizer, I apply this to my neck and face.
The effect is startling. A tonic, vital freshness is awakened in the skin, and a healthy glow and fineness of texture results from the daily use of such a preparation.

B. E. F. FORCES MEET FIREMEN
Benefit Baseball Game With Vets Camped Here To Be Played Thursday.
Arrangements for a benefit baseball game for the B. E. F. camp established near town were completed Tuesday.
The game will be played between the Gettysburg fire company and the B. E. F. nine on the academy field Thursday evening at 5:45 o'clock. No admission will be charged but an offering will be lifted which will be turned over to camp officials.
The ex-service contingent promises to put a strong team on the field. Several of their number are ex-professional players and claim good records.
Practice All Day
Tuesday the soldiers went through an all-day practice session with another long drill promised for today. Ex-aviators, infantrymen, cavalrymen, and radio experts will be included in the veterans' lineup.
Although the ex-service team's lineup is quite problematical the lineup will include: M. Eldon, cf.; R. Mencer, 3b.; T. Lester, 1b.; A. A. Dawson, A. Woods and E. Dixon, pitchers; J. F. Barrow, rf.; W. Fayette, lf.; R. Kruth, ss.; L. Gammond, 2b.; P. J. Genteman and G. Peterson, catchers; C. K. Hardin, John Halowick, N. Temper, utility, and J. M. Grace, manager.
The smoke-eaters will choose their lineup from Hen Bream G. Bream, Buehler, Hutchison, Woodward, Frank and Charlie Yingling, Myers, Bender, Palmer and Rebert.

Bendersville will play the strong state hospital nine of Harrisburg Thursday evening at Bendersville. Last week the doctors slashed their way to a 2-1 decision over the upper counties in a game played at Harrisburg and the county league leaders are bent on revenge. The game will start at 5:15 p. m.
This evening the Epco nine plays a return game at Biglerville. The locals won handily, 9-1, in their meeting here Monday.
Reports to the effect that Cash-town will play its remaining league games all away from home are unfounded, according to the Cashtown club officials. Regrading the wavy outfield is being done this week but the work will not interfere with the scheduled games. Gettysburg plays at Cashtown Saturday.
Doc Crist's fast moving ball club is the featured attraction at a festival to be staged this evening at Hunterstown. The Cristies play at Two Taverns Friday evening.

GERMANY VOTES DEATH PENALTY FOR TERRORISTS
Von Hindenburg Supports Measures; Hitler Pleads For Order.
Berlin, Aug. 10 (AP)—The government Tuesday night invoked extraordinary powers, including the death penalty, in an effort to put a stop to outbursts of political violence which have resulted in the killing of at least 140 persons and serious injuries to more than 1,000 since June 1.
With the approval of President von Hindenburg, three emergency decrees were issued by Chancellor von Papen.
One of these extended the political truce to September 1. Another set up heavy penalties, including sentence of death, for acts of terrorism. The third instituted special "speed" courts to deal summarily with offenders.
Two More Are Killed
Tuesday night's publication of the decrees coincided with a string of further outrages in which two men were killed.
At Dillenburger a young reichsbannerman was shot dead at his window. At Dormund a communist was shot dead from an automobile. Pierce fighting at the funeral of a national socialist victim in Chemnitz resulted in the arrest of nineteen persons.
One of Tuesday's decrees stipulates that convicted offenders will not benefit from any future amnesty.
The situation was considered so critical that the government did not wait for President von Hindenburg to return from his country estate at Neudeck, in East Prussia, before clothing itself with emergency authority.
The substance of the three decrees was conveyed to the president by telephone, and he approved them.
Meanwhile Adolf Hitler, whose Nazi storm troopers are held accountable for much of the violence, took steps to check the political passions of his followers.
Hitler Demands Discipline
Furious because of outbursts in which storm troop detachments participated, notably in East Prussia and Schleswig-Holstein, Herr Hitler issued most stringent orders that discipline must be maintained.
Complete statistics on the casualties since Von Papen became chancellor June 1 are not available. But it is certain that the dead include fifty communists, eighteen members of the republican reichsbanner organization, twenty-seven Nazis, one member of the steel helmet war veterans' organization, five policemen and thirty-nine innocent bystanders, including four women.
